There is a friendly and nurturing ethos at the school that helps pupils to feel cared for and valued. Pupil well-being is an important priority for leaders and other staff at the school. They work tirelessly to create an inclusive and nurturing environment for pupils. In nearly all cases, pupils have positive attitudes to their learning, take part enthusiastically in lessons and activities, and collaborate well with each other. Overall, they make good progress in the development of their social, literacy, numeracy and other skills.
